Instructional Design for Integrating Technologies
(Room 212 EC)
Session 1 – May 10, 2007 - 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

This hands-on workshop will allow participants to make individual plans for incorporating technology into their teaching and learning processes. Participants should come prepared with an instructional unit including goals and objectives. Participants will rework each aspect of their instructional unit with elements that use technology to transform teaching and learning.

Applying the Seven Principles of Good Practice to Online Education
(Room 303)
Session 2 – May 11, 2007 – 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Participants will learn how to apply Chickering and Gamson's seven principles of good teaching to online education. Everyone will have the opportunity to share ideas on how they use these principles in both face-to-face and online environments. Participants will also network with others to help develop online teaching strategies.
